Campaign Subscriptions

Democrats or friends of Wilson and Marshall who desire to contribute to the National Democratic campaign fund may do so through The Gazette. The National Committee solicits small contributions, and all subscriptions sent to us for the National Committee will be receipted for by us at the time and later a receipt will be forwarded by the National Committee from this state, Hon. A. Mitchell Palmer.

Democrats who wish to contribute to the county fund and not the national, may also remit to The Gazette. All such contributions will be receipted for by the treasurer of the County Committee to whom we will turn over all contributions. Every dollar helps; so does every half dollar proportionately.

Business Men Meet

A meeting of the business men of Bedford was held Tuesday evening of this week in the room of Prof. S. H. Koontz, in Odd Fellows' Building, for the purpose of effecting an organization as an association.

The purpose of this movement is to afford mutual help and protection along legitimate business lines and especially in regard to bad book accounts.

This meeting was composed of fifteen merchants of the town and was full of interest. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, John Line; Vice President, James S. Davidson; Secretary and Treasurer, A. S. Guyer. The board of directors comprise the following: J. S. Blymyer, Fred C. Pate, W. H. Straub, D. W. Prosser and E. F. England.

The next meeting promises a still larger attendance.

Mrs. George R. Shuck

After a lingering illness of several months the death of Mrs. Jennie C., wife of George R. Shuck, occurred at her home, 203 West Pitt Street, Bedford, at 10:30 a. m. Sunday, September 8.

Deceased was born July 30, 1866, in East Providence Township, Bedford County. She was the daughter of John M. and Hannah Van Horn.

On June 30, 1888, she was married to George R. Shuck of Bedford, to whom were born the following five children, who, with the husband, survive their mother: Frank, Margaret, Mildred, Edmund and Joseph, all of Bedford. Two sisters: Mrs. Maggie Foreman of Wells Tannery, Fulton County, and Mrs. Olive Felton of Woodbury, and three brothers: D. M. Van Horn of Snake Spring, J. M. Van Horn of Everett, and James F. Van Horn of Rock Island, Ill., also survive their sister.

Mrs. Shuck was a most estimable woman possessing those qualities of mind and soul which ever leave their impress for good upon others and the world at large better for the life lived.

The home, the church and the community have suffered an irreparable loss in the death of this Christian woman, devoted wife and mother, and for her kindly deeds in the day of final account many will rise up to call her blessed.

The funeral services were held from her late home Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, Rev. W. V. Ganoe of the Methodist Church, of which deceased was an active member, officiated. Impressive music was rendered by a male quartet. Interment was made in Bedford Cemetery.

HECKERMAN LETTER

Some Sage Admonition on Being on Time.

Butler, Pa., September 2, 1912. Editor Gazette:—Melbinks I have written you before from this town. My, what a nice hotel the Nixon is! Everything is as clean as a new pin; floors all carpeted and the table teaming with the good, substantial things of the market.

The town is a great manufacturing one and has the blues and a blackeye. The manufacturers can scarcely hold men to work and all are eagerly grasping for all the mechanics in their various lines. The day laborers don't want to stay here or in the county.

The reason assigned for the great scarcity of skilled, as well as common laborers is that the men won't stay where there is no license. It seems that the judge got up on his ear last spring and cut all the licenses in the county out. Just what his reasons were I have not heard. Some of these judges think they own the counties in which they reside. Had you judge walked the streets of Bedford two weeks ago last Saturday night, seen the drunkard and heard the language, he would have called a special term of court and granted licenses, believing from what he saw and heard that it would be far better to have licensed hotels than to have the scene before his eyes. Of course, it is too late now.

Yes, I know a man who goes through life ten minutes late. He was born behind schedule time and has never been able to catch up. I know plenty of men and women who can wear this shoe, and we will call it "Ten Minutes Late." I have often heard it said, "I'll be there in ten moments." Yes, yes, but the fireman pulls the bell cord, the engineer the throttle and you are on the iron bridge "ten moments late."

I have never in all my traveling missed but one train because I was late. I have a reputation of being on time, and when St. Peter opens the wicket, he will find Dad on time.

The wasting of time is also to be deplored. So many girls and women, also men, sit down and fold their arms and waste the precious moments. I shall not dwell specially on the girl or woman who has nothing to do—the wife or daughter of the multi-millionaire—whose only aim in life is to have a good time, or to look beautiful, a lady of leisure, whose conscience seldom tells her that no one was sent into this world to do nothing. But the girl who cannot afford to sit with folded hands or the one that already has a position that calls her to be on time at a certain hour, expects pay for this lost time. Six days a week, ten moments a day makes a full hour lost to her employer, and if I were hiring such, their name would not be long on the pay roll.

In the business world of today the man, woman or girl who does not return satisfactory service for payment expected would not hold her position very long. There is no romance in office work, or in work of any kind whether performed by man or woman.

This may be a hard lesson for the pretty girl to learn, but she or the young man will soon be taught it. If your employer does not tumble at once, he will soon do so. He may be ten moments late but he will surely do so and then your name will be chopped from the pay roll.

Such help, as a rule, are not a bit careful of other people's time and are likely to keep others waiting on them on all occasions. If they have an engagement to go somewhere with someone they are invariably ten moments late, and if it is a girl, she will hardly ever offer any excuse whatever for the ten moments she has kept you waiting, even if the weather is hot or cold. The thing to do is to be on time and not ten moments late, and to start in on time plugging away trying to give service and give and get profit. Also note this fact, that every poor sucker, whether male or female, who is working for a house that for a short time allows you to sit around always ten moments late, is living on false hopes. If you are working for a house that needs and demands a profit and insists upon it, they don't want you always ten moments late.

We each one must work at our respective callings and there is no getting away from it, but to get results from our work it must not be done grudgingly or mechanically, for pleasure in work makes it easy, desirable and productive, and to accomplish all we must be on time, and not ten moments late.

Here is a prescription to cure the political sore of the day: Why not have three Presidents and let the scrap go on; it will keep us from thinking about our troubles. Vol you tink?

Yours truly,
M. P. Heckerman

A $2,000 TEMPTATION

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary Press.

It was said of the town of Tompkinsville that it contained more honest, truthful men than any other town of its size in the state. Among other incidents related to prove the claim it was told that a merchant who had been paid 3 cents too much by a customer living twenty-five miles away hired a man to drive the distance and back to hand over the pennies.

Again, a grocer who had warranted a pound of coffee to be Mocha found out that it was only Rio and saved his conscience by returning the money and a pound of tea besides.

The stranger who dropped quietly into Tompkinsville one day and registered at the tavern as Henry Beach was about forty years old. He had a pleasant way with him, but a physiognomist would have said that he was a cynic. The day after his arrival he called at the office of the Weekly Recorder and took the breath away from the editor by making his cash down price for a full page advertisement. The thing was unprecedented. It was too tremendous to be swallowed under five minutes.

There wasn't a great deal to that ad. when it appeared. It was headed "Two Thousand Dollars For Some One," and it asked people to call on Mr. Beach and give up certain information and bear away the money. You can wager that they began calling without delay. To all, and it took days to get to the last one, the advertiser explained:

"Seven years ago I had to pass through this town on my way to Hillsboro. I was driving a horse and buggy, and just in front of your town hall one of the hind wheels of the vehicle began to wobble. The nut had worked off the axle, and the wheel was about to roll away and cause an accident, in which I might have lost my life. At the critical moment a man stopped me and pointed to the wheel.

"I was in dire haste to reach the bedside of my dying mother, and I don't remember that I even thanked the good man. I ran back, found the nut in the dust and, clapping it on the axle, I sped away. I was in time to see my dear mother breathe her last. Then I had to go to South Africa and Australia on business and have been back only a few days. I have felt all along that the man who notified me of my wobbling wheel ought to be rewarded, and I am here to do it. I want to find him and hand him $2,000."

The first man to hear the story was that same grocer who had acted so square about the coffee. He was fat and excitable, and when the story had been told he was breathing like a wind broken horse.

"Seven years ago, was it?" he asked.

"Seven to a day."

"Let's see? Let's see? Ah, yes, I remember. Seven years ago today as I was passing the town hall a man came along in a buggy. Whatever made me look at the hind wheels I can't say, but I noticed that—"

"What time in the day was this?" interrupted Mr. Beach.

"What time? Um! Let's see! My watch had run down the night before, but I think it was about 10 o'clock."

"Then it was some other man. I passed through here at 4 o'clock in the afternoon!"

Mr. Kennedy, the undertaker, came next. He listened with bated breath to the story as told the grocer and then replied:

"It is curious how a few words will recall a forgotten incident to you. Seven years ago today I was standing in front of the town hall when a Mr. Johnson asked me if I had heard that old Mrs. Harvey was sick and like to die. That makes me sure of the date."

"Of course."

"Mr. Johnson had passed on when I saw a man in a buggy coming at a fast clip. As he was about to pass me I saw that one of the hind wheels was wobbling."

"And you held up your hand and called out?" said Mr. Beach.

"I must have done so."

"It looks as if the $2,000 was yours, but a question or two. At what hour in the day was that?"

"Lemme think a minute. What hour? What hour? Well, sir, as near as I can put it, it was about half past 3 in the afternoon. Yes, I am sure it was."

"But I was driving through your town at 9 o'clock in the morning, so it couldn't have been you. There must have been two of us with wobbly hind wheels."

The undertaker meekly retired, but it was afterward said that he went home and kicked his dog and jawed his wife.

That investigation lasted about two weeks, and it used up almost every man in the town. Even a minister and celders and deacons called. None of them came right out and affirmed that he saw the wobbly wheel, but all contended that it was very likely they were passing the town hall at the hour named. If they were passing and if they saw the wheel, why, of course, they called the driver's attention to it.

Among the applicants for the reward were ten women. Each one of them was sure of the wheel and the wobble until Mr. Beach gave the hour as 11 o'clock at night. When he had closed up his case he went back to the editor, who had not been on the spot when the wheel wobbled, and paid him $40 for a full page ad. This time it read:

"Tompkinsville has a population of 1,450. There are 532 liars and dishonest men and women among them."

And then he paid his bill and moved on.

JUBILEE CONVENTION

Pennsylvania's Greatest Religious Federation Fifty Years Old.

The greatest religious federation in the State of Pennsylvania is the Pennsylvania State Sabbath School Association, for it represents practically all of the Protestant Evangelical denominations. This great organization dates its birth back to the month of May, 1862, when over nine hundred delegates coming from all parts of the state met in the First Independent Church, Broad Street, Philadelphia, and at the close of a three days' convention effected a permanent organization and elected ex-Governor James Pollock as its first president.

Since that time, covering a period of fifty years, this organization has been an active agency in promoting Sunday School work in all parts of the state.

The association will celebrate its fifty years of organized effort with a great Jubilee Convention in Philadelphia, the city of its birth, October 8, 9, 10 and 11 next.

Pennsylvania stands pre-eminently to the forefront as a Sunday School state. It has a larger number of Sunday Schools than any other state in the Union, the total being 11,083. The total present membership of these schools is 1,917,929. In other words, one out of every four of the state population is a member of some Sunday School. The State Association is making a great effort to bring the total enrollment up to 2,000,000. The increase last year was 82,168.

The Jubilee Convention to be held next October will be a great event, for which many special features are now being planned. Sunday School folks from all parts of the state will attend in great numbers. Among the special features already announced will be a Jubilee Musical Festival in the New Convention Hall. The hall has a seating capacity of 20,000. A chorus of 5,000 singers is now in training for the event.

A great Men's Organized Adult Bible Class demonstration, with 25,000 men in a great parade on Broad Street, is another attraction advertised.

The Board of Directors of the State Association propose to honor all persons in the state that can be found showing a record of fifty years of service in the Sunday Schools as an officer or teacher. Medals are now being prepared to be awarded to these veterans at the Jubilee Convention.

A complete program for the convention will be ready about September 15.

MONEY BACK CATARRH REMEDY

Dosing the stomach won't kill Catarrh germs. Neither will sprays, douches, snuffs or ointments.

The quickest way to kill germs is to breathe deep into the lungs the vaporized air of Booth's HYOMEI.

As this antiseptic air passes over the sore spots infested with Catarrh germs, it not only destroys them, but heals the inflamed membrane and stops the discharge of mucus.

Then hawking, spitting, snuffing, crusts in nose and foul breath will disappear, and vile, disgusting Catarrh will be conquered.

A complete HYOMEI outfit, which includes a hard rubber inhaler, only costs $1.00. Extra bottles, if afterwards needed, 50c; and F. W. Jordan is authorized to refund your money if dissatisfied.

DRAWS OUT POISON

Marvelous Antiseptic that Draws Glass, Wood and Needles From the Flesh.

There never was known such a powerful drawing ointment as San Cura. Wherever it has been used it has created astonishment. It drew a needle out of the foot of the daughter of Mrs. James Hitchcock of Centerville, Pa., after the doctor had used his lance and failed.

Nothing so healing or antiseptic can be purchased today. It possesses so much healing virtue that it is guaranteed by Ed. D. Heckerman to quickly cure any kind of piles, eczema, tetter, salt rheum, boils, carbuncles, ulcers, all kinds of chronic sores, chilblains, and chapped hands, or money back.

It's a mighty handy remedy to have in the house in emergencies such as bruises, burns, cuts or scalds, because it kills the pain instantly. It's a medicine chest in itself—a little family physician that is ever in demand. 25c and 50c a jar at Ed. D. Heckerman's.

Best Skin Soap

Is San Cura Soap, because of its great antiseptic and healing virtues. Use it regularly, and it will make the skin soft and velvety; will remove pimples and blackheads. It's the real soap for babies' tender skin, which mothers of infants should remember. 25 cents a large cake at Ed. D. Heckerman's.

Identification by Finger Prints

The system of identification by thumb prints, which has been in use for a number of years in detective circles in Europe and America, has been modified as a means of protection of depositors in banks, and has been adopted by a number of financial institutions. One of the first of these institutions to adopt this latest factor of safety is the Pittsburgh Bank for Savings, which now uses an improved system of finger-prints for the identification of depositors who cannot write, thus affording them an individual signature obtainable in no other way. A person who merely "makes his mark" as a signature, with some one else writing the name, runs much risk, because he cannot always procure the same person to write for him, but must depend on any one near at hand. It is easy, also, for some one to impersonate him. Now, however, when making an initial deposit, instead of writing his name on a signature card, or rather "making his mark," he gives the bank an impression of the first three fingers of his right hand, thus providing a record which cannot possibly be imitated by any forger. Years may elapse after a deposit has been made, but the words and curves on the fingers remain the same, and it would be fruitless for anyone else to try to reproduce those marks. Hence his money is safe. The operation of taking the finger prints is simple. A slab of glass is rolled with printer's ink. The three fingers are pressed on the slab and then on a card, and the card is filed away for reference. A little gasoline instantly removes the ink from the depositors' fingers, and the transaction is completed.

One way to relieve habitual constipation is to take regularly a mild laxative. Doan's Regulets are recommended for this purpose. 25c a box at all drug stores.

A Superb Hunting Number

The September Sports Afield (now before us) contains many articles of unusual and general interest. S. D. Barnes' serial, describing frontier life in Arkansas during the Civil War, continues with unabated vigor, and in the accuracy and vividness of its hunting and fishing articles Sports Afield long ago distanced all competition. We have only space to mention a few of the leading contributions, although every article in the magazine is well worth while.

Among some two dozen stories of outdoor sport, we have especially enjoyed A Few Iowa Ducks, How to Mount a Deer Head, The Bear Fight at Bald Knob, A Texas Ranger's Experience, Deep Sea Salmon Fishing, Field Sports in Wisconsin, A Morning with the Squirrels, A Goose Hunt on the Mississippi, Prairie Chicken Day in Minnesota, Trout Fishing in Michigan, Wild Animals in Illinois, and that always interesting department, Around the Camp Fire. Your Lungs and Throat.

The preparation mentioned by the Rev. Chas. Sager has been for over sixty years of incalculable worth to sufferers from consumption, asthma, bronchitis, catarrh, gripe, coughs, colds and all lung and throat diseases, and is a household remedy in many, many homes to which it has brought health and happiness.

Mr. C. A. ABBOTT, August 21, 1905.
60 Ann St., New York City.

Dear Sir: I have known for over 40 years of the effects of Wilson's Remedy (Wilson's Preparation of Hypophosphites and Blood-purifiers) in cases of pulmonary troubles. At this point I will say to you what you have not before known of, that 42 years since, while I was a resident of N. Y. City, I was severely ill with lung trouble. Physicians said I was a consumptive and my family physician told my wife that he thought I could not recover. My attention was directed to the Wilson Remedy, which I used with splendid effect. I have been on my feet and at work ever since my cure. Yours truly,

REV. CHAS. SAGER,
Pastor M. E. Church, Hunter, (Greene Co.) N. Y.

The above letter shows what a great boon the Wilson Remedy was to Mr. Sager, but it is but one of thousands received testifying to the curative powers of this wonderful remedy. Write at once to Mr. Abbott at the above address and he will furnish you convincing proof of the great worth to humanity of this preparation.

MORTGAGES ON LAND.

Why It Is Essential That They Should Be Recorded.

As the value of land to the owner increases so does the security of mortgage investments given on that land increase. A mortgage may be considered as a deed of the land which reverts the title in the original owner or his successor on the paying off of the mortgage or the bond or note which the mortgage secures.

Mortgages are recorded in public offices, called registers, recorders or county clerks' offices, in much the same way that deeds are, so that any one buying the land is bound to take notice of them, and the land is bound by them, no matter to whom the land is conveyed, and no one has a right to say that he bought the land not knowing that a mortgage was on it, for he is presumed by law to know such facts, as a search of the title in these public offices would reveal.

If, however, the holder of the mortgage does not cause the mortgage to be recorded then any innocent purchaser of the land can take it clear of the lien of the mortgage.

In no particular has the law of this country gone further than in the effort to secure the title of the landowner and the security of the mortgage holder, and no investments are more highly regarded by the conservative business man than those founded on the imperishable surface of the earth.—Christian Herald.

UMBRELLA HANDLES.

In France They Shape Them as They Grow in Nurseries.

Most of the handles of canes, alpenstocks, parasols and umbrellas used in France are grown in nurseries. Ash, maple, oak, chestnut and other woods are used. In the early part of the first year after planting the young trees are cut near the ground to bring about the formation of numerous sprouts. The lower branches are removed, and only a plume of leaves is left.

Early in the spring the sprouts are subjected to a surgical operation. Their bark is cut, and the wood is carved in different designs, which are swollen by the sap and grow in high relief as the tree develops. Special instruments are used for the cutting and designing. Thus carved, the sprouts grow for three years.

At the end of the third year the forest of umbrella handles is cut, and the cuts are dried in the sun and then given a vapor bath, after which they are put into the hands of skilled workmen, who peel them with one quick movement.

When skinned the peelers cut them to the required lengths and send them to the umbrella maker, who varnishes them. If the shape desired is a ring or other open form a ring or oval or square is grafted to the natural stalk, bound closely, and left to grow into place.—Harper's.

Extra Buttons.

"It takes stout people to break all rules regulating the number of buttons on a coat or waistcoat," said the tailor. "They can't follow the fashion; their size won't let them."

"Three buttons on a coat this year," tailors' conventions may decree, or two or four or five, or whatever number they think proper, but the man with a figure that is constantly trying to escape its environment does not care about conventions. What he wants is buttons enough to keep his clothes in shape.

"Put 'em closer together," he says. "So the strain won't all come on two or three buttons."

"So we put them closer together, and the result is that stout people frequently have twice as many buttons on their clothes as fashion calls for."—New York Times.

An Able Manager.

A western senator was telling a story about an able campaign manager.

"He is a remarkably economical chap," said the senator. "He can make a dollar go further in a campaign than any man I know. They tell a story about him—a story that shows what a manager he is. It seems he went into a cigar store one day to get a light. Well, as he was lighting up a man entered and bought three five-cent cigars. As soon as the man left our friend said quickly:

"Those cigars are six for a quarter, ain't they?"

"Yes, sir," said the salesman.

"Our friend laid down a dime.

"Gimme," he said, "the other three then."—New York Tribune.

A Ghost Story.

A London daily tells a short modern ghost story. A man was traveling on a northbound train out of London. Opposite him was a silent stranger, his only companion. Between London and Derby no word passed. Then, as the train drew out of Derby, he said pleasantly, "Good line, this, sir, eh?" The stranger replied: "I think it's a beastly bad line. I was killed on it two years ago."

LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES

They Are Closely Observing Public Health Conditions

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview on the subject, made the astonishing statement that the reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of applicants do not even suspect that they have the disease.

He states that judging from his own experience and reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has probably been more successful in relieving and curing these diseases than any remedy known. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of cures.

We find that Swamp-Root is strictly and herbal compound and we would advise our readers who feel in need of such a remedy to give it a trial. It is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes—fifty-cents and one-dollar.

However, if you wish first to test its wonderful merits, send to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle, absolutely free. When writing be sure and mention the Bedford Gazette. Aug. 30-41.

First Prize

Success Follows a Failure

By CLARISSA MACKIE

The crowd pushed through the entrance gates of the big county fair in a continuous stream. Outside the great fenced-in area was a maze of vehicles of every description, from the humblest box wagon to the highly varnished and luxuriously equipped motorcar.

Inside the grounds there was as great a dissimilitude among the people wandering from one exhibit to another, streaming in and out of the side-shows or gathered in the refreshment tents.

Phoebe Sweet had arrived that morning in her father's comfortable two-seated carriage, all the available space about her piled with daintily wrapped boxes, for Phoebe always exhibited at the Corinth fair, and her bread and cake and canned fruit always carried away the first prizes.

Today had been an exception, however, for one by one the coveted prizes had been awarded to another exhibitor, who in years past had been among the vanquished, and, although Phoebe had smiled bravely as she saw her products passed by, she was bitterly disappointed at the outcome.

Her father, arriving at the building too late, found her at the door, flushed and rather dejected. "Same old story, Phoebe, bird?" he asked affectionately.

She shook her head dolefully. "What is the matter with me, father? I didn't take a prize—not one!"

"Why-eees!" exploded Mr. Sweet, aghast. "What in thunder are those fellows thinking about anyway? What do they know about bread or cake or pies, eh? Let me have a look!"

He was about to pass her when Phoebe caught his shoulder and shook him laughingly.

"It's no use, father, dear. Mrs. Scoville's products really are superior to mine. Let us go back and look at them, and please don't let any one know we are very much disappointed."

"I'll look as glad as I can that Mrs. Scoville's name has carried off all the honors," smiled Mr. Sweet as he led his daughter down the building to the exhibit of domestic productions.

A few people were gathered about a table on which were set forth several loaves of beautifully baked bread, some toothsome frosted cakes and a row of variegated canned fruits. A tall, sunburned young man was speaking to a short, plump, motherly-looking woman.

"You've carried off honors for the family, Aunt Sabrina," he was saying cordially.

"Good land, George, I'm almost ashamed to have taken it. That pretty girl almost cried when they passed over her things with just 'honorable mention.' There's so few girls who can cook nowadays that they ought to be encouraged instead of an old woman like me stepping in. I declare, there she is now!"

Phoebe had heard the frankly spoken words and had flushed warmly. Mr. Sweet smiled good naturedly, and the woman, who was Mrs. Scoville, stepped forward with a pleasant, winning smile.

"You heard what I said," she remarked, holding out a plump hand to Phoebe. "And I meant it too. Your things look beautiful, and I'm sure they taste as good as they look."

"Thank you, Mrs. Scoville, you are too kind," said Phoebe gratefully. "This is my father; dad, this is Mrs. Scoville, who carried off the prizes this year. We must congratulate her!"

Mrs. Scoville warmly insisted that Phoebe's dainties were as good as her own if not much better, and much time was spent in comparing the two exhibits.

"I used to see you carrying off the prize every year," said Mrs. Scoville at last, "and I told George, my nephew, that it was too bad a girl should carry off highest honors every year, so I pitched in and tried for the prizes, and now that I've got them all I don't feel a mite better. I feel just as you overheard me telling George. And, by the way, where is George?" She looked around for the sunburned young man who had been talking to her.

"If he was the tall young chap who was talking to you when we came up I saw him going over toward the race track," remarked Mr. Sweet.

"Oh, dear me! Of course he would be going there at this time. His little mare Princess will be in the three-year-old trotting class. Would you care to go over and see the race?"

"We expected to. I've got a horse in it myself," said Mr. Sweet. "My hired man is going to drive."

"George will drive himself," observed Mrs. Scoville as they walked across the grass toward the trotting course. "I do hope Princess will win. He's so fond of her and has set his heart on winning this race."

Phoebe, walking silently beside the two older people, looked like a pretty flower in her sheer, white dress, from which her pink face, under a lacy white hat, trembled like a wind-blown blossom. Childless and widowed Mrs. Scoville looked at the girl more than once as Mr. Sweet told of how cleverly his only child managed the motherless household.

"I don't know what I shall do if Phoebe ever gets married," he ended, with a sigh.

"And that does not seem unlikely," smiled Mrs. Scoville over Phoebe's embarrassed head.

"I dislike every eligible young man," laughed Mr. Sweet good naturedly.

In the grand stand Phoebe felt a glow of interest in Mrs. Scoville's handsome nephew, George Belden, who appeared in a small sulky driving a dainty black mare. He scanned the faces in the grand stand and waved his cap toward his aunt.

"Ah, there comes Sam, driving Dewey!" exclaimed Mr. Sweet as a straw-whiskered man came into view on the course. The horse Dewey, which had won many a heat for its owner, was a long, rawboned specimen of equine flesh, but with an enormous power of reserve strength that brought its homely nose under the line every time.

Sam saluted his employer, and Mr. Sweet waved his hat, and Phoebe fluttered a handkerchief. But her father noticed a singular lack of enthusiasm in her manner. Her eyes were not on her father's horse, but were following the course taken by George Belden's black mare.

"If you go back on Dewey, daughter, I shall feel that you have found another sweetheart than your old dad," he said in a low tone, and Phoebe's quick caress and blushing protest seemed to satisfy him.

Presently they were away, and the crowd on the grand stand held its breath while there sounded the sharp trot-trot-trot around the course.

From the very beginning Dewey took the lead, and the other racers stretched out obliquely on his left. The black mare Princess held her white nose close to the left wheel of Sam's sulky, and Phoebe discovered herself harboring traitorous thoughts.

She wanted Dewey to win, and she wanted George Belden to win. She didn't even know him to speak to, and yet she didn't want to see the look of disappointment come into his eyes. Yet she blushed at her own forwardness in harboring such thoughts.

As for her father, Mr. Sweet had taken the purse at the trotting course for many years, and would he not be disappointed if Dewey should fall him this last year that he would enter him? So Phoebe turned her blue eyes away from the black mare and fastened them loyally on Dewey's lank form and exerted all her mental powers to desire that his homely old nose should once more come under the wire in lead of his fellows.

"Princess is gaining—gaining!" cried Mrs. Scoville jubilantly, and then a quick frown creased her forehead.

"Dear me, Mr. Sweet, I do wish George's mare was not running against your Dewey! It makes it hard to be impartial."

"Much obliged, Mrs. Scoville. I shan't take it hard if the youngster wins out. We old folks must retire some day. It's got down to a race between Princess and Dewey after all."

"I know George's heart will be broken," lamented Mrs. Scoville as Dewey flew under the wire to a loud demonstration from the crowd. "He'd set his heart on Princess winning this race, and he was so confident that he planned to take me on a trip to the mountains with the purse."

"I'm sorry, ma'am," and Mr. Sweet's eyes twinkled with pleasure in spite of himself. "But I'll promise to put Dewey out to grass after this and give the younger ones a chance."

"No, no! That wouldn't be what George calls 'sportsmanlike,'" protested Mrs. Scoville as they emerged from the stand and waited near the gate for George Belden's appearance.

When he came disappointment was plainly written on his frank face, but he swallowed it when he discovered that Mr. Sweet was Dewey's owner, and with good grace he congratulated the winner and was presented to Phoebe, whose few words of regret at the defeat of Princess seemed to compensate him for the loss of the race, for he regained his spirits immediately and proved to be a very genial, companionable young man.

They paired off then, Mrs. Scoville and Mr. Sweet leading the way, while Phoebe and George lingered along, he coming better acquainted as they viewed the different exhibits and enjoyed the simple pleasures of the fair.

George Belden inspected Phoebe's cakes and bread and gravely asserted that he could see no difference between those toothsome viands and his aunt's products that had carried off the honors. And Phoebe blushed and dimpled and thanked him and confided to him that she had been almost sorry to see Dewey win the race—because she had taken such a fancy to the dainty little Princess.

Of course George invited her to take a ride behind the black mare, and as the sweets lived ten miles distant from George Belden's farm it became something of a custom for the young man to drive over and spend a Sunday with the sweets and take Phoebe out driving and, later on, sleighing.

When June came around Phoebe Sweet sought her father one evening and wound her arms about his neck. "Oh, father," she whispered softly, "George says he did win first prize at the Corinth fair last fall—that's me! And I think I won first prize in getting him! You don't mind, do you?"

Mr. Sweet kissed her lovingly and looked into her soft blue eyes with his twinkling one.

"It takes the old folks to win out, after all, honey," he said. "You see Mrs. Scoville and I both took 'first prizes' at Corinth fair, and we're taking 'em again now, because she'll have me, and I'll have her, and Dewey's prize money will pay for wedding trips all around!"

Which proved to be a most satisfactory arrangement.

Fell Four Thousand Feet.

A tragic balloon experience was that of Brownlow. Accompanied by another balloonist, he made an ascent from St. Louis in 1902. The balloon rose rapidly to a height of about 4,000 feet. At this point Brownlow leaned over the side of the car to adjust something. A sudden change in the wind a lurched of the car, and Brownlow fell over the edge of the basket and, with a cry that his aerial comrade said would haunt him to his death, shot downward toward the earth. The balloon, thus lightened, sprang upward with a great leap, and Brownlow's companion lost consciousness. When he recovered the balloon was in full descent, and he managed to find the valve cord, and so deflate it as to make a safe landing. Of Brownlow no further trace was ever found.—New York Tribune.

Wanted to Be Prepared.

A congressman tells of a little shooting party which he attended. "More than one of the party," says the congressman, "felt a trifle nervous about a certain young Englishman as he and his gun seemed strangers. Nothing occurred, however, until I got something poking me in the side as we crept along. Turning quickly, I found the novice prodding me with the muzzle and fumbling with the hammers of his gun."

"'Hi, Gus,' he whispered, 'before we get on to the birds you might just show me 'ow you let these 'ere triggers down!'"—Boston Traveler.

ONLY ONE "BEST"

Bedford People Give Credit Where Credit is Due.

People of Bedford who suffer with weak kidneys and bad backs want a kidney remedy that can be depended upon. Doan's Kidney Pills is a medicine for the kidneys only, and one that is backed by willing testimony of Bedford people. Here's a case:

William Easter, 113 W. Penn St., Bedford, Pa., says: "I cannot say too much in favor of Doan's Kidney Pills, for they were of greater benefit to me than any other kidney medicine I used. Two years ago I had a severe attack of lumbago and my back became so lame that I could hardly get around. My kidneys were sluggish and Doan's Kidney Pills acted promptly in removing the pain and lameness, and before long the kidney difficulty was corrected. I have had no trouble from my back or kidneys since then and can therefore say that Doan's Kidney Pills brought me permanent relief. They are worthy of all the praise I have given them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other. Sept. 13-2t.

The Boys' and Girls' Magazine

When boys and girls get to the reading age most of them are permitted to cultivate their own literary tastes. As a result they devour all the stories in sight, good and bad, while they should be reading none but the best. And for another thing, good juvenile fiction is not easy to obtain.

The Boys' and Girls' Paper of The Pittsburgh Sunday Post was designed to give the youngsters a brand of high-class stories. It is full from cover to cover of live reading—delightful serials and clever short stories. The illustrations are by excellent artists and lend a touch of living interest to the pages. It is a big, separate section, something that the boys and girls can really call their own.

Order The Pittsburgh Sunday Post, and provide your children with the best literature for them that can be had.

THE MAINE ELECTION

Many of the Taft papers are making much of the result of this week's election in Maine and the President himself declares he is "highly pleased" with the result, seeming to attach some significance to the oft-repeated statement "As Maine goes so goes the nation," but a little study of conditions in the past leaves no ground for rejoicing on the part of the wing of the Republican party that is clinging to the President.

Eight years ago the Republicans carried the state by over 25,000 and 12 years ago by more than 34,000, while this year it falls below 4,000. Four years ago the Republican plurality was nearly 8,000, while two years ago the Democrats carried the state by a plurality of more than 8,000.

In considering the result in Maine as an indicator of the political tide it must be remembered that for the last few years Maine's state elections have turned upon local and not national issues, the liquor question being a prominent factor.

Much more importance may be attached to the total vote of the parties in Maine than to the plurality of the winning party. In 1900 the Democratic vote was about 39,000 and it has now increased to 67,000, while the Republican vote has decreased from 74,000 to 71,000; a decrease of 3,000 as compared with an increase in the Democratic vote of 28,000. Compared with the vote at the September election four years ago, the election before the last presidential campaign, the Democrats this year gained about 1,000 while the Republicans lost about 2,000.

It should be remembered, too, that this year there was a close union at the state election between the Taft and Roosevelt people which will not exist when the ballots in that state are cast for presidential electors. There will be a division of the Republican party in November and a bitter fight will be made by both factions for supremacy, which will make it the easier to elect the Wilson electors.

The claim that the result of the September election in Maine foretells the result of the national election is neither logical nor do the facts of history verify it, for in 1884 and again in 1892 the Republicans carried the state at the September elections by much larger pluralities than they secured this year and yet Grover Cleveland, the Democratic candidate for President, was elected in both instances.

The claim that "as Maine goes so goes the nation," in the light of the facts presented borders on the ridiculous.

In Vermont a short time ago the Republican party split, six-tenths going to Taft, three-tenths going to Roosevelt and one-tenth to Wilson. If the Republican split in Maine should be in the same proportion as in Vermont the result, according to the computation of the New York World, would be as follows:

Wilson ..... 74,000
Taft ..... 42,000
Roosevelt ..... 21,000

Time will tell. But one thing is sure: the Republican vote will be divided in some proportion between Taft and Roosevelt, while there is no visible reason why Wilson should not hold the Democratic vote and gain some from the opposition. His carrying Maine seems a foregone conclusion.

NEARER HOME

It is but natural that the Democrats of all sections should be delighted with the strides being made by our National candidate, Woodrow Wilson, in his campaign for the presidency of the United States, but while delighted with the success with which he is meeting at every turn we should not forget that there is a state ticket in the field and that we vote this fall for a member of Congress and of the House of Representatives at Harrisburg.

The present member of Congress from this district and of the House at Harrisburg are both candidates for re-election, and the voters of the district and the county should carefully examine their records and consider their opponents.

Hon. Jesse L. Hartman has served one term in Congress and has done nothing; he is a nonentity. His effort to get his name on the Washington party ticket is a thorn in the flesh of old time Republicans and will lose him many votes in this county. The voters are awake and they want a representative of the people at Washington and not merely a tool of a party or of the dominant faction of a party.

His opponent, Mr. Bailey the Democratic nominee, is a man of ability,—which fact dare not be questioned,—and he has the courage of his convictions. He is an able editor of one of the state's influential papers and is versed in governmental affairs.

In Hon. John T. Matt Bedford County has a representative upon whom she can count. He is a man of good judgment and has had a wide business experience. In more instances than one during the last session he demonstrated the fact that he possessed the backbone to stand and fight for what he believed to be right. He is a man of courage and will not wear the collar of any boss. That he is able to express himself clearly and forcefully on the floor of the House was frequently demonstrated.

Both Mr. Matt and his opponent are pledged to use their influence for local option. There are many voters in both parties in the county who are for local option while many are against it. Those who favor local option know what Mr. Matt did during the last session; he can be depended upon.

Nothing derogatory to his record at Harrisburg can be produced and he should be returned.

Mr. Roosevelt complains of "weasel words" in the Baltimore platform. Go slow, Theodore; you put more "weasel words" in your short letter to Harriman than you can find in the long platform adopted at Baltimore—Bryan's Com-

Bryan on Roosevelt

William Jennings Bryan, in The Commoner, writes:

Now that Mr. Roosevelt's campaign is in full swing he exhibits the same indifference to the facts that has characterized him throughout his political career. No other politician has surpassed him, and few have ever equaled him, in the employment of the rule that the end justifies the means, and when the end is his own election, any means are in his judgment allowable. In a recent speech in Vermont, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"The Democratic and Republican platforms uphold the anti-trust law as in itself a sufficient panacea."

If Roosevelt has ever read the Democratic platform [and of course he has], he knows the above statement to be UNTRUE. The anti-trust plank in the Democratic platform reads as follows:

"A private monopoly is indefensible and intolerable. We therefore favor the vigorous enforcement of the criminal as well as the civil law against trusts and trust officials and demand the enactment of additional legislation as may be necessary to make it impossible for a private monopoly to exist in the United States."

While Mr. Roosevelt has himself indorsed the action of the Supreme Court in inserting the word "unreasonable" in the anti-trust law, the Democratic platform demands legislation restoring the strength of which the law has been deprived by the Supreme Court decision. In addition to this, while Mr. Roosevelt points out no remedies whatever, the Democratic platform outlines all the legislation necessary to prevent the creation of continued existence of a private monopoly.

Roosevelt, seeing that his own plan of indorsing the trust as a permanent thing is not proving popular, is resorting to DELIBERATE MISREPRESENTATION.

Can the honest, earnest men who call themselves progressives be deceived by such clumsy and UNSCRUPULOUS tactics?

Cheap Paint

The cheapest paint is the one that goes farthest and wears best; there is most in a gallon of it.

What is a quart of milk worth? Depends on the milk.

So of paint; depends on the paint. Devoe is worth the top price, whatever it is. Poor paint is worth nothing at all; you've got to pay your painter $3 or $4 a gallon for putting it on; and it isn't worth it.

Devoe goes twice as far and wears twice or three times or four-times as long.

The cheap paint is Devoe at the top of the market.

KAUFFMAN REUNION

Twelfth Annual Meeting Held Saturday Near St. Clairsville.

The twelfth annual reunion of the Kauffman families was held at the home of Frank Oster, near St. Clairsville, Saturday, September 7. A fine dinner was prepared by the ladies present which was served in the barn floor and of which about one hundred and forty-seven persons partook. The day was fine, except being very warm until in the afternoon when a shower of rain came and interfered with Photographer F. E. McCreary's plans.

A short program was rendered, as follows: Address, W. H. Clouse; music, Osterburg Band; recitation, Edythe Beckley; address, Prof. Messler; music, Osterburg Band.

The old officers were all re-elected except Maggie M. Oster, who was elected Corresponding Secretary instead of Mrs. H. L. Lekites.

The following persons were present: Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Clouse, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dick, Mr. and Mrs. Abram Snavey, Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Snavey, Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Imbler, Mr. and Mrs. George Seambaugh, Mr. Messler, F. E. McCreary, Mr. Bootey, Ira Brumbaugh, Harry Kauffman, Edgar Long, George Speece, John Hengst, William Cameron, Harry and Wesley Stambaugh, Raymond Fetter, Sherman Kauffman, wife and daughters, Edna and Alma; George Kauffman, wife and sons, Berdine and George and daughter Frances; Shannon Kauffman, wife and sons, Chester, Clarence and Wallace; Frank Kauffman, wife and daughters, Jessie and Alice; A. ### MONSTER WHALES.

A Dozen Men Might Stand Upright in the Blue's Big Mouth.

Specimens of the blue or sulphur bottom whale weighing seventy-five tons and measuring eighty-seven feet have been known. The mouth is sufficiently large to permit ten or twelve men to stand upright in it, but the throat measures only about nine inches in diameter.

The "finback," closely related to the blue whale, has been called the "greyhound of the sea," for its long, slender body is built on the lines of a racing yacht, and the animal can equal the speed of the fastest steamship.

The "humpback" is the most interesting of our large whales, because of the fact that its habits are more easily studied than are those of other members of the family.

But most extraordinary of all is the square nosed sperm whale. Instead of having plates of baleen, this whale carries a row of twenty to twenty-five heavy teeth on each side of the lower jaw. These fit into sockets in the roof of the mouth and assist in holding the giant squid and cuttlefish on which the enormous animal feeds. The squid seldom gets away from the warm currents; hence the sperm usually remains in the tropics and in the Gulf of Japan streams—London Family Herald.

VALUE OF A PASSPORT.

The Odd Experience of a Stranded Tourist in Paris.

"Until you go broke in a foreign country you never can realize just what a useful thing a passport is," said the returned traveler. "It not only enables you to get into a country; it also helps you to get out, sometimes in a most unexpected way. Everybody abroad thinks well of a passport, but nobody sets quite so high a value on it as a pawnbroker."

"Owing to a delayed remittance I had occasion to visit one of those men in Paris. The article I offered for security was worth many times the loan requested, but he refused an advance on account of unsatisfactory references. My temporary address in Paris and my permanent address in Washington were not sufficient guarantee of my honesty."

"Just as the case assumed a desperate complexion the broker suggested a solution of the difficulty."

"Have you a passport?" he asked.

"I had, at the hotel."

"Fetch it," he said. "If that looks all right, I'll let you have the money."

"Up to that time my passport had been a useless piece of luggage; then I blessed the foresight that had bidden me secure it!"—Washington Star.

Rainsburg

September 10—Wednesday evening, September 4, the ladies of our town gave a miscellaneous shower to Mr. and Mrs. Pearl Ake. The presents were numerous and useful.

John H. Mower, whom we reported last week as critically ill, died Saturday morning at 2 o'clock. The funeral services were conducted by his pastor, Rev. J. R. Melroy, Sunday afternoon in the M. E. Church. The pall bearers were six grandsons: Carl and Douglas Mower, Clyde, Charles and Thomas Miller and Merlyn Smith.

Those from a distance who attended the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. Chap Mower, Mrs. Burket, Miss Dean Mower, Clemmens Smith and Clyde Miller, of Altoona; Mr. and Mrs. George Miller, of Paw Paw, West Virginia; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Miller, of Youngstown, O.; Miss Nell Miller of Bedford and Norman Mower of Johnstown.

Grant Smith and son Harold, of Pittsburgh, are visiting friends in this place.

Glenn, the little son of Murray Smith, while playing on the street recently, fell and broke his arm. Dr. H. C. Lessig rendered surgical aid.

Paul Cessna will leave on Wednesday to resume his studies at Pennsylvania College, Gettysburg.

On Saturday quite a merry crowd of our young people enjoyed a hay wagon ride to the dam near Cumberland. They took with them plenty of good things to eat, and report a royal good time. Those who went were: Stella Miller, Blanch Smith, Pearl and Ruth Cessna, Grace Miller, Mary and Grace Reessler, Louise Hite, Hazel Oliver, Ellis and Stanley Miller, Harmon Simons, Charles Smith, Howard Shaffer and Charles Beagle.

Mrs. Clemens Smith and baby are guests of Calvin Smith of this place.

DIED

KINZEY—Monday evening, September 9, Peter Kinzey died in Johnstown, aged 44 years. He was born in this county and was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Kinzey. Interment was made in the Sandvale Cemetery, Johnstown, Wednesday afternoon, September 11.

SNOWDEN—Saturday afternoon, September 7, Mrs. Mary A. Snowden died at Waterside, aged 75 years. The funeral services were held in the Woodbury M. E. Church Tuesday morning, September 10.

—From New York World.

AN OLD WOMAN'S WILL

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary Press.

Her proper name was Eliza Craig, but she was always referred to in the village of Howland as old Mrs. Craig. She was a widow when she came there, and she was a widow when she died, ten years later.

The arrival of a stranger in a village of 1,200 inhabitants, and that stranger a woman and a widow, is bound to stir up things. She bought a house of Deacon Craft for $600, and when asked where she came from her prompt reply was:

"None o' your darned business!"

She bought new furniture and moved in, and that was the beginning of a rather strange life. Word went around the town that the newcomer was "teehy," and it did not prove a mistake. She carried a grouch on either shoulder. She was judged to be sixty years old, but she was as spry as a girl of sixteen. She paid cash for what she bought, but whether she had plenty of little could only be guessed at. Any queries thrown out on this subject were met by:

"You mind your business and I'll mind mine!"

Several ladies called on Mrs. Craig in a neighborly way. They wanted to let her know that, although she was a stranger within their gates, she could at once begin to lend and borrow tea, sugar and coffee the same as an old resident. None of them got into the house. At the front door they were asked their business and told they were not wanted.

Elder Hazlett was her neighbor on the right. He kept chickens the same as all other residents. Among them was a Shanghai rooster, who could crow like a two-year-old bull. His crowing didn't seem to annoy anybody but the widow. She jumped on the elder with a suit for damages, and she scared him into paying her $10 and wringing the rooster's neck with such a wring that he never crowed again.

The rooster incident was the beginning of a dozen lawsuits. The woman revealed in them. She brought suits against men and women and the village. She had the money to pay her lawyers and the costs. She had the spunk to appeal when beaten. For five years she kept the town in a turmoil, and finally it was decided that she must be crazy, and an order was procured from the court to have her sanity inquired into. Six medical men did the business—that is, they came out of it with features dragging.

It was shortly after this that Mrs. Craig was found dead in her bed. She had said that she had no relatives, and the courts took charge. A will was found, and when in due time it was opened it knocked the breath out of many villagers. There were 149 bequests, and only samples of them can be given here. One of her first bequests to the village was:

"I hereby bequeath the sum of $2,000 to the village of Howland for the purpose of buying a fire engine and erecting a house for the same."

There was a hum of approval as that paragraph was read, but it died a sudden death.

"Provided that," it continued, "old Squar Billings rolls the length of the mudhole on Main street three times a day for ten successive days."

"To Elder Hazlett, who called me a crank, the sum of $1,000, provided he will ride his old spotted cow four times around the Methodist meeting house on the first Sunday of each month for a year."

"To Mrs. Henry Rayburn the sum of $1,000 to buy herself a new nose. I never liked the one she has. It has always poked into other people's affairs."

Mrs. Rayburn had helped to prepare the old woman for burial, and at the reading of the paragraph she was heard to murmur that she wished the body had been thrown into the river.

"To the county of Dwight the sum of $20,000, to erect a new jail, provided that Mr. James, Mrs. White and Mrs. Graham are the first three prisoners in it and serve not less than sixty days as a cure for their gossiping tongues."

Dwight county didn't get the money and the jail.

"To the village of Howland the sum of $5,000 for the grading and paving of its main street and putting in sewers, provided Deacon Darius Black, of the Methodist church stands on his head in front of the postoffice for five minutes on five consecutive days."

The deacon was told he would be considered the meanest man ever if he beat the town out of that bequest, but he got mad about it and offered to lick any man that would step outdoors with him.

"To Mrs. James French the sum of $1,000 to spend in soap and towels to keep her children's faces clean and the hooks and eyes sewed on her dresses." (No proviso, but it was not claimed.) "The sum of $1,000 to Mrs. Caleb Jackson and Mrs. Charles Tinker, provided they quit lying about their neighbors for the space of one year and a day."

There were numerous other bequests just as strange, and the widow was the strangest of all. The sum of $40,000, which was found in the house in cash and bonds, was left to a widow in the village to whom Mrs. Craig had never spoken. The proviso was that she should not marry a fat man, if she took another husband, and she gave bonds and got her legacy and married a lean one.

PEASANTS' OF RUSSIA.

They Can't Read and Have to Be Aided by Signs and Symbols.

All Russian shops have signs indicating the business carried on within them. Most of them have paintings describing the articles sold. For example, outside the fishmonger's is a large picture of fish; outside the butcher's, of meat; outside the poultryer's, of chicken and game; outside the tea shop, of teapots, glasses and saucers.

Mouses are painted red, green, yellow, blue, so that the peasants may easily differentiate them or explain the way. Trains are sent off by bells at the station because the peasants cannot read the time tables. The first bell, one chime, is a quarter of an hour before the train starts; the second, two chimes, is five minutes before; and the third, three chimes, means the train is starting.

At postoffices men are employed to write letters for peasants or read them at a fixed tariff. For addressing an envelope, one farthing; for writing a postcard or a short letter, penny-farthing; for writing a long letter, twopenny-halfpenny; and for reading a letter aloud, one penny. Every pillar box has a picture of a letter on it, so that the peasants may know it is the place in which to drop his postcard or his envelope. Russia is, as a rule, free from billboards, because the peasant cannot read.—London Family Herald.

Onion Soup and Fame. Membership in the French academy, the hoped for reward of Gallic writers, was once closely associated with onion soup. During the restoration in France a club was formed under the title of "Diner de la Soup a l'Onion." This organization contained twenty members. It met every three months, when the dinner was opened with an onion soup. The club was to endure until every associate was elected to the academy. This was accomplished in 1845, when the last banquet was held.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson XI.—Third Quarter, For
Sept. 15, 1912.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Matt. xi, 20-30.
Memory Verses, 28, 30—Golden Text,
Matt. xi, 28—Commentary Prepared
by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

This lesson is another step backward in the regular sequence of events, but it matters comparatively little, as He is the heart of every lesson, and the book is given to us that we may know God, who can be known only through Jesus Christ, as we shall see before we have finished the lesson.

Our attention is caught first by the three references to His mighty works (verses 20, 21, 23), and we remember that He said on one occasion: "If I do not the works of My Father believe Me not." But if I do, though ye believe not Me, believe the works, that ye may know and believe that the Father is in Me and I in Him" (John x, 37, 38).

In Israel's national anthem, which was written long ago and which they will sing when the kingdom comes, they will exhort one another to declare His doings, for He hath done excellent things (Isa. xli, 4). In their great psalter they are repeatedly urged to talk of all His wondrous works (Ps. lxxviii, 4; xcvi, 3; cv, 2, 5; cvi, 2). We should begin at creation and follow on through His dealings with Noah, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Joseph, Israel's deliverance from Egypt and all His subsequent dealings with them; then remember that He who did these mighty works in Chorazin, Bethsaida, Capernaum, is the same person whom we saw working from creation onward, who was born as the Son of Mary in Bethlehem; but whose goings forth have been from of old, from the days of eternity (Mic. v, 2, margin). Mark His "I say unto you" (verses 22, 24) and remember that it is the same as the "thus saith the Lord" of the Old Testament, and it stands to all eternity. He is speaking as the Judge when He talks of the future of Tyre and Sidon and Sodom and the day of judgment and says that it will be more tolerable for them than for the cities in which He did His mighty works, for the Father judgeth no man, but hath committed all judgment unto the Son (John v, 22). What this "more tolerable" may mean we cannot know certainly, but we do know that there are degrees in punishment, many stripes and few stripes, as there are also degrees in glory—every one punished or rewarded according to their doings (Rev. xxi, 12; Jer. xvii, 10). Salvation is the same for all and wholly of grace apart from any works of ours, but the rewards for the saved will be according to service. All who reject Christ are lost, but punishment will be according to desert.

As to the day of judgment, it will cover a thousand years, saved people being judged for service at the judgment seat of Christ and the nations after that, when the redeemed come with Christ in glory, both of those judgments at the beginning of the thousand years—the judgment of the great white throne for the rest of the dead at the end of the thousand years. The Lord is not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance (II Pet. iii, 9), and one of His last commands before His ascension was that repentance and remission of sins should be preached in His name among all nations (Luke xxiv, 47). Even after the church shall have been caught up, when the trumpets shall be sounded and the vials of wrath poured out, it will be in order that men may repent (Rev. ix, 20, 21; xvi, 9, 11). The wisdom of this world cannot receive these or any other truths of God and is increasingly rejecting the whole word of God, and thus we learn that we are fast nearing the end of this ungodly age and the dawn of a better one. Let us be glad to be the little children, the babes, who believe every word that our Heavenly Father has told us, and let us not forget that the world by its wisdom, whether in the pulpit or the pew or the professor's chair, does not and cannot know God (I Cor. i, 21). It is better to know God than to possess the riches or wisdom or might of this world, but it requires true humility and poverty of spirit, and that the proud, rebellious, carnal mind of man does not have and does not want (Jer. ix, 23, 24; Matt. v, 8; Jas. iv, 6).

When we are able to say concerning all the words and works of God, all that He does or permits to be done, the words of verse 26 from the heart, "Even so, Father, for so it seemed good in Thy sight," we have reached a place of real soul rest, a place where we can "abide satisfied." This was the rest of the Lord Jesus Christ. The Father sent Him, and He lived by the Father, always pleasing the Father and delighting Himself in the Father's will. So He says to all those who labor and are heavy laden, "Come unto Me, and I will give you rest." The rest is to be found in Himself, not in His service nor His gifts. We must learn to sing from the heart, Jesus, I am resting, resting in the joy of what Thou art. He says, "My peace I give unto you." The love of the Father and the will of the Father were His rest and peace, and they may be ours too. Only the meek and lowly heart can enjoy His yoke and learn of Him, but to the natural man this meekness and humility are utterly distasteful, for the natural man is under the control of the devil, and he knows nothing of meekness or lowliness.

We have hundreds of letters from satisfied customers stating that their tires have only been pumped up once or twice in a whole season. They write none other than the ordinary tire, the puncture-resisting qualities being given by several layers of thin, specially prepared fabric on the tread. The regular price of these tires is $10.00 per pair, but for advertisement purposes we are making a special factory price to the rider of only $4.80 per pair. All orders shipped same day letter is received. We ship C. O. D. on approval. You do not pay a cent until you have examined and found them exactly as represented.

We will allow a cash discount of 5 percent (five per cent) on making the bicycle $4.56 per pair. If you send FULL CASH WITH ORDER and enclose this advertisement, you run no risk in sending us an order as the tires may be returned at our expense if for any reason they are not satisfactory on examination. If you order a pair of these tires, you will find that they will ride easier, run faster, wear better, last longer and look finer than any tire you have ever used or seen at any price. We know that you will be well pleased when you want a bicycle you will write us your order. We want you to send us a trial order at once, hence this remarkable tire offer.

IF YOU NEED TIRES—Puncture-Proof Tires can be ordered and trial at the special introductory price quoted above, or write for our free Illustrated Sample Catalogue which describes and quotes all makes and kinds of tires at about half the retail price.

DO NOT WAIT but write us a postal today. DO NOT THINK OF BUYING A BICYCLE or a pair of tires until you have seen our new and different kind of tire. It is a new and different kind of pump.
